PG 27

The fear of the unknown is real, the unfamiliar makes people act in unpredictable ways, committing actions that are irreversible. Where I'm from it's a lot of unknowns, fear is not only present, but instilled through obstacles, that take a grind that many can only imagine, to overcome. Fear can immobilize a person completely, leaving them as a lot of my peers would say as stuck in their ways. Sometimes you just have to take a couple of steps to create momentum, these minuscule steps can bring an energy far brighter than darkness. The willfulness to become the best one can be, the effort to become great, alone can rid the body and mind from this natural instinct.

Trusting in your faith and proving it through action. Fear is a part of life, conquering fears is a part of adapting.

Don't wait on the hero!
